When the image I've been working on a problem that has been frustrating me for hours and the solution is staring me in the face I'm just so excited and so proud of myself that I'm squealing! my problem is that I have a list of pictures that are in this format that are in this format {this is me. I have written them on this document. I also have named the document this way. so to read it I write in "this is me". the lines are different but that's just my code formatting, not actually the problem. I'm trying to generate a list of every word that appears in all the files. The file extension can be anything but it's always So the first list item will be the first word in the first file. The second list item will be the second word in the first file. The third will be the first word in the second file and so on. So far I've been using a for loop to go through all of the files. I have the below code but it just gives me a list of the first file. I just want the the word from the first file, then the second file, then the third file and so on. For example I have 20 files and I want the list to look like this Hello! I have been using and I am having issues using a gulp task to clean up my.js files because it keeps ending up in.js. The line is: sequence(['assets/js/app.js', 'assets/js/frontend/app.js', 'assets/js/backend/app.js'], {base:'src'}).on('error', common.log);

I have tried changing base to dist as well, but I get the same result. I have a feeling it has something to do with the fact that the files get clobbered. Any help would be appreciated. Comment out the following line in the file: `//  IMPORTANT ` // This file is generated and maintained automatically. // It does not include the automatically generated build files. // If this file is left out of the code generation process, it is very*

A small screenshot of the issues: A: I believe the error you're getting is due to a specific field (namely, TextOp) being read-only. It is a limitation of the form and there's no easy way to change it. The workaround I use is to create a form with a different layout. I have a form that contains a list of questions to be answered, and I place it next to a button that allows the user to add more questions. When he gets to the end of the list, I include a link to his own profile form.
