Add an entry to a KeyMacro. Parameters: x: The entry's index. A negative value will place the entry at the end of the KeyMacro. x: The entry's string. x: The entry's new string. Commandline Arguments: x: The entry's index. A negative value will place the entry at the end of the KeyMacro. x: The entry's string. x: The entry's new string. You can use the app to find and edit a certain string in the selected file and you can save copies of it to your computer. Most commonly used menu commands are available on the application's toolbar ribbon. File Editor 2000 supports the following commands: Ctrl+F: Find. Find the first instance of the string you specify and replace it with the new one. Ctrl+G: Find Next. Find the next instance of the string you specify. Ctrl+R: Replace. Replace the current instance of the string with the new one. Ctrl+U: Undo. Undo the last change made to the file. The Find menu options have the following options: Case Sensitive: The app will search for the string in a case-sensitive manner. This option changes the way the app handles the string to make it case-sensitive. Use this option when you want to have the app search for the string as you typed it. For example, if you type "Adfoo", this app will search for "Adfoo" and not "adfoo". When Case Sensitive is not selected, the app will search for the string as it appears in the file. Case Insensitive: The app will search for the string in a case-insensitive manner. This option changes the way the app handles the string to make it case-insensitive. Use this option when you want to have the app search for the string as you typed it. For example, if you type "Adfoo", this app will search for "adfoo" and not "Adfoo". When Case Insensitive is not selected, the app will search for the string as it appears in the file. Whole Word: The app will search for the string only if it is the entire word. For example, when you type "Foo Bar" this app will search for "Foo" and not "Foobar". This option is useful when you have a large string that should only be searched for at the
