Lately, I have been getting a very odd issue with my MacBook Pro, which I have had for about a month and half now. The problem is that a day or two usually doesn't matter, but sometimes it may take days or weeks to do so. The situations can be very frustrating and some people have even changed their Apple keyboards to external USB keyboards. They don't want to have to send their devices to the Apple store and to wait to get a response from them. So this video can help you on how to avoid data loss in your Apple devices. From
