KEYMACRO is a Windows application that lets you create or modify shortcuts using a predefined macro. You can also save macros in external files for them to be imported and then to be executed. What's more, you can export macros and even edit them from outside the app. Write Macros to launch applications KEYMACRO is a handy utility that lets you easily create shortcut keys to activate applications or open browser URLs. You can create single-key and double-key macros with an individual "Run" command. The hotkeys can be set automatically and then the program will execute the macro you have saved on its own. Edit Macros outside the program If you need to edit the currently used macro, you can do so by double-clicking on it in the main interface. You can also copy and paste its content to other locations in order to reuse it. In addition, you can import and export the macro to external files. Tests have shown that the application is quite fast when it comes to carrying out macro editing operations. It is, however, a bit cumbersome when it comes to accessing macro files and exporting them to other locations. How to use KEYMACRO To launch a macro, you should first create it. Double-clicking on the created hotkey will automatically activate the macro. The shortcuts can be saved to files in order to reuse them later. The program also comes with the possibility to load macros stored in external files. In addition, you may configure the shortcut to open links on a predefined browser. KEYMACRO supports any web browser of your choice. You may also set hotkeys to launch the macro without waiting for the user to press a specific button. This is especially convenient if you want to quickly create new macros on the fly. You can specify shortcuts for the macro execution and press a single button to activate the macro. Summary The application comes with a handy macro-editing interface and it offers many powerful features. You may create single-key, double-key, and triple-key macros using a convenient and intuitive interface. The macros are extremely easy to edit and are supported by a large number of external files. Autoclicker is a software tool that can automate mouse clicks and keystrokes to perform repetitive tasks in a very efficient manner. You are allowed to choose different click intervals to click anywhere on your desktop, click on a specific object in your documents, select a file or download it from the web, access the internet, run a macro, run a given command, highlight some text in any program or file and move the cursor to a specific point. The process of setting up Autoclicker is extremely simple. Simply go to the application's options, where you will find two different ways to define where your mouse will click: A few clicks away from the mouse location or as close to the mouse as possible. You can also define different hotkeys to start and stop the clicker, which will be useful if you want to set up the clicker to run at a given interval for a long time, or if you want to perform an action on each and every click. In addition to these settings, the software will prompt you to define how many times you want to click and how to mark the clicks. For example, a hotkey can be used to automatically select one click every time you hit it. With Autoclicker, you will have a powerful, yet lightweight software tool to automate any kind of task.
