Post navigation Being the Education Endocrinologist First and foremost, I am the Education Endocrinologist. This is a medical credential I proudly hold (if you don't, you should feel great about yourself). I am a physician assistant and work as an Endocrinology fellow. For ten years, I was in private practice in Fairfield, but now I am in the Health Maintenance organization at The Catholic Medical Center, of which I am very fortunate to be a part. I grew up in New Orleans, but I've lived in the Tri-State area now since graduating from the Southern College of Optometry in 1997. I love my job. I am very grateful to have it. And I'm very grateful to have The Catholic Medical Center. I have a number of reasons to be thankful. For one thing, I train for my marathon by running in my neighborhood park, and The Catholic Medical Center has the area's best track. One of the two dogs in my life was rescued from this same park and is now my constant companions. A fellow Endocrinologist that I train with was also rescued from the same place, and we run together three mornings a week. I also have the privilege of being a part of the only one hospital in the state of Connecticut to have a dedicated Diabetes Training/Family Resource Center. This is certainly a source of pride to me. There is also the education I receive daily as a member of the team. As a medical student, I experienced a similar program, but the campus in Fairfield provided more of a family atmosphere. For example, the Student Council assisted me in the remodel of my office (which they helped fund, needless to say), and the local Catholic community has been wonderful to me. The Surgeon, the Physician Assistant, the Nurse, every person in this area has been very gracious and caring. I often share with my trainees and patients the importance of being thankful. Not only does being grateful help us to enjoy the good times, but it also allows us to focus on what really matters in life. I'm happy to say that I am a very grateful person. And it's important to remind ourselves of that throughout our busy, stressful lives. Thanksgiving is an especially great time to focus on gratitude.Identification of highly active lead-based catalysts for polymer electrolyte membrane fuel cells (PEMFCs) with improved durability.
