Video Editors As video editing and creation becomes more and more popular, companies are releasing their own video editors. The list of programs includes inexpensive ones like Windows Movie Maker and Final Cut Express, which are probably just adequate for small projects, and expensive programs like Adobe Premier Pro and Final Cut Pro, which are probably best for professional video editing. You can download video editing programs or buy programs on a disc with support. If your camera comes with software that's bundled with it, try it out before spending money on a video editor.

Q: How to set different kubernetes deployments/services for different environments? I have two different environments, Dev and prod. For Dev I need to use k8s deployments & services. For example, apiVersion: apps/v1beta2 kind: Deployment metadata: name: web spec: replicas: 3 selector: matchLabels: app: web template: metadata: labels: app: web spec: containers: - name: web image: gcr.io/kubernetes-web-devel/web For prod deployment I can use apiVersion: apps/v1beta1 kind: Deployment metadata: name: web spec: replicas: 3 selector: matchLabels: app: web template: metadata: labels: app: web spec: containers: - name: web image: gcr.io/kubernetes-web/web:1.0 Which one is correct? When should I use which one in which cases? Is that meant to be deployment for local k8s development, like k8s minikube? A: The first example is a Deployment of an application in Kubernetes and the second is a Deployment of a Pod in Kubernetes. When you launch a Pod for Dev or Prod you can consider it as your local development environment. For example, you can start a container with an image in your local computer or any Kubernetes cluster. In Kubernetes, there are 3 distinct modes of managing (or more precisely describing) pods. A Deployment is the management of one or more applications. It defines the replicas, the scale (number of replicas), and other options such as image pulling/pushing and restarting of pods based on changes
