Make sure your activity is an activity, not a service. Or, try setting a touch listener on the SurfaceView, and have that listener call through to the activity. You'll have to read up a bit on touch events (and try some sample code). A: just use simple callback method for the same (also custom menu): public void surfaceCreated(SurfaceHolder holder) { // TODO Auto-generated method stub openContextMenu(mSurfaceView.getHolder()); } public void openContextMenu(final View target) { Toast.makeText(target.getContext(), "Context Menu is open", Toast.LENGTH_SHORT).show(); showContextMenu(target); } public void showContextMenu(View target) { final PopupMenu popup = new PopupMenu(target.getContext(), target); popup.getMenuInflater().inflate(R.menu.custom_menu, popup.getMenu()); popup.setOnMenuItemClickListener(new OnMenuItemClickListener() { @Override public boolean onMenuItemClick(MenuItem item) { return false; } })
