Surgical repair of recurrent post-sternotomy mediastinitis: a multicenter retrospective study. To determine the validity of re-sternotomy for the management of recurrent post-sternotomy mediastinitis. A multicenter retrospective review of all patients with post-sternotomy mediastinitis who underwent re-sternotomy from January 2000 to March 2007 was performed. Patients with a previous sternal infection were excluded. Those with a history of hypertension, diabetes mellitus and previous cardiovascular surgery were also excluded. Patient outcomes included risk factors for recurrent mediastinitis, post-operative complications and in-hospital mortality. Univariate and multivariate analysis were performed. A total of 22 patients with a history of previous sternotomy and mediastinitis were identified. The mean age was 56 years (range: 32-80 years). All of the wounds were infected due to anastomotic leaks. The median interval from initial to second operation was 4 months (range: 1-39 months). Post-operative complications occurred in all patients, including new wound dehiscence in 5 (23%), renal failure in 2 (9%) and myocardial infarction in 1 (4%) patient. However, there were no cases of pericardial window infection or sternal osteomyelitis. Survival was 70% (15/22) at 90 days and 50% (11/22) at 1 year. Risk factors for recurrent mediastinitis (hazard ratio [HR]: 6.96, 95% confidence interval [CI]: 2.04-23.80), concomitant cardiac surgery (HR

The current church building at 6381 Chester Avenue in San Diego, California is one of the oldest active parishes in San Diego. Today it is part of the Episcopal Diocese of San Diego. History The parish was established on July 18, 1859, with funds contributed by Fernando and Isabel Montaña. The early parish home was at the corner of Scranton and Dearborn in San Diego's Plaza, though the congregation moved to build a permanent brick building on McKeon Avenue and St. Paul Street in 1863. In the 1890s the church moved to a more central location at the corner of Santa Clara and Jones Street, where it remained for 50 years. The current building was designed by renowned architect Alfred Rosenfield in the Spanish Revival style and built in 1918. Current building cost $100,000 to construct, and was designed by Alfred Rosenfield. Rosenfield also designed the Catholic Cathedral of San Diego, across the street. The Ascension Church is a member of the Diocese of San Diego and is affiliated with the Episcopal Church USA. The church is named after the Ascension Week on the Sunday before Easter. Former altars Veneration of the holy image of Christ, the Sacred Heart of Jesus, Christ in Majesty. St. Michael and All Angels St. John the Evangelist
