The History of Photoshop Designed in 1992, the first publicly available Photoshop was a simplified version of the first Macintosh version. In 1993, Macintosh computers with the PowerPC chip became available. Shortly after, versions of Photoshop were also for Apple II and Motorola PCs. That same year, versions for DOS, OS/2, and Windows began to be released. Many of the original features were added in the version 3.0 release. Some more advanced features, such as the most popular image editor, were added as well. In 1995, Steve Jobs announced the launch of Photoshop for the Mac OS X, where it became an essential part of both iWork and iLife. In 1997, the Photoshop Express app was launched to the App Store, which made it available on mobile devices, like the iPad. Smart Objects In Photoshop, a smart object is a shape that is linked to an image, similar to a filter or action. As a user selects the shape, it appears or disappears on the image. With the addition of smart filters, smart objects can be created or edited with a variety of filter effects. This feature is especially useful when manipulating the shape in the camera. As a user photographs a subject, a new shape can be added to the photo, or existing shapes can be edited or moved. When the image is complete, the smart object is linked to the original image. Thus, the filter or action applies to the entire image. The first Photoshop smart object template was created by John Knoll, a former Apple employee, in 1996. The original template was called "Star Filter," and was used to help visual effects artists create star shapes. In the 4.0 release, the star filter was renamed to be Photoshop's first Smart Object. In 2005, Photoshop CS2 introduced Smart Filters to help users create their own filters. A Smart Filter contains a filter action and a filter shape. The user is able to change the shape of the filter by selecting the shape in the filter shape menu, a technique similar to the Smart Objects. These filters can be applied to any layer of an image in either an "inside-out" or "outside-in" fashion. The same smart filter can be duplicated to any number of layers. Smart Filters and Adjustment Layers The enhancement layer, or adjustment layer, is used to make changes to a specific part of the image. The changes are applied to all other layers

Theresa May told MPs: "I will not do a deal where the whole economy and whole country has to be put at risk for an unelected few." Photograph: PA The former prime minister, Gordon Brown, said if it came to a choice between a no-deal Brexit and a second referendum, he would prefer to go back to the people. Brown was asked during a Labour leadership debate if he would choose a no-deal or a second vote if there was no-one on the ballot paper. He said: "You've got me caught in the middle there. "If it comes down to a choice between a no-deal Brexit and a second referendum, I'll probably go for the second referendum. On that basis we would have to go back to the people. It's not ideal, because there are people who want to leave with no-deal, and it's an extension of an extreme, populist position." His remarks follow those of other Labour figures who have said they want to take Britain out of the EU without a deal, saying there would be damage to the economy and economy of Britain but it was better than staying in the European Union. John McDonnell, the shadow chancellor, said it was time to have a referendum to leave the EU. He said there needed to be a series of negotiations to secure a deal, including a general election, to which his party was prepared to agree. That will not be possible if a Tory-DUP deal is struck in Westminster. "If it doesn't happen that way, that means we need to go to the people and say, would you prefer to be part of a loveless continental state or continue to be part of the European Union?" he said. "Either we leave with a deal or we leave without a deal. That's a question the country needs to be asked." Liz Kendall, the leadership candidate and former shadow health secretary, said she was disappointed to hear the Labour leadership had been supportive of a no-deal Brexit. She said the process was "about creating chaos and fear and pushing the government into an extreme position that could lead to war". Voting on the Labour leadership starts on Saturday at around 9.30am.as a reminder, but this is the new address: Quote:

Q: Render multiple partials from within a view helper in Rails 3.2 I am trying to use some view helpers in Rails 3.2 to control a series of form elements and label elements for a date range picker. The details for the picker are in a separate partial and the whole thing has been rendered inside a panel wrapper for the entire page. I am able to set up my views with the control statements for rendering individual variables, but the rendering occurs before my view helper can alter the HTML to have different fields in the form. Here is how my view looks currently. | Date Range:
