Q: Backface visibility and CSS on borders I can't manage to make the the edges of a div 'punch out' the center of an image when using :backface-visibility:hidden on a div with background:image(...). To me it should be doable using only CSS, as the background of the div with the background is transparent, so it should not even show that the div is there. This seems to be a bug in Chrome 21, but it's hard to tell, because Firefox and IE don't have such a bug, but the borders are still visible. Here's a link to the site: A: To do what you want you need to specify a z-index to your divs. Something like the following should work. .div1:after { position: absolute; background: #fff; content: ''; display: block; top: -1000em; left: 0; width: 100%; height: 100%; z-index: -100000; } Mohun Bagan have signed their goalkeeper Prasun Bhattacharya for the upcoming I-League season. The 29-year-old is a former East Bengal star who had earlier had spells with Mohun Bagan and Mohammedan Sporting. The Deccan Chronicle report Bhattacharya will be a backup keeper and had a trial with the Bagan A team last week. Prasun had a great season with East Bengal and Mohammedan Sporting last year, where he was the highest-paid player in the second division for the season. He also the Bagan A team to the semi-final of the Syed Mushtaq Ali Trophy. The former India international has 68 caps and was part of the national team side in the 2009 SAFF Cup.
